About World Alzheimer’s Month

World Alzheimer's Month is the international campaign by Alzheimer's Disease International (ADI) every September to raise awareness and challenge the stigma that surrounds dementia. World Alzheimer's Month was launched in 2012. World Alzheimer's Day is on 21 September each year.

2 out of every 3 people globally believe there is little or no understanding of dementia in their countries. The impact of World Alzheimer's Month is growing, but the stigmatisation and misinformation that surrounds dementia remains a global problem that requires global action.

A huge thanks to all the IQVIA fundraisers who supported World Alzheimer’s Month 2019! Over 650 IQVIA employees from 10 countries across Northern Europe, Middle East, Africa and South Asia signed up for a 5K challenge as part of their Race for Health initiative, which was launched with a live webinar at the beginning of September. IQVIA staff raised over $16,000 to support ADI and our members.
The theme of this year World Alzheimer’s Month was ‘Let’s Talk About Dementia,’ with the aim of raising global awareness around dementia and challenging the stigma that continues to persist globally. By highlighting the importance that dialogue plays when it comes to discussing dementia, ADI wanted to emphasise that conversations have the power to break down stigma, encourage the first step towards accessing support and services, as well as receiving a timely diagnosis.

World Alzheimer’s Day, 21 September, saw the release of our 2019 World Alzheimer’s Report: Attitudes to dementia, which analysed the findings of the largest survey on attitudes to dementia ever undertaken, as well as alongside expert essays and case studies from around the world. The report was featured extensively across global media, including the BBC World Service and Sky News, and has been downloaded 3.6k times from ADI’s website. Click to download the report.

During the month of September, ADI also launched its joint global campaign with the Pan American Health Organisation (PAHO). The joint campaign, also under the theme of ‘Let’s Talk About Dementia’, was focused on stimulating that often difficult ‘first conversation’ and follow-on conversations with health care professionals. ADI plans to continue the joint campaign through October and November. More about the PAHO campaign will be available in our upcoming evaluation report. Thanks to Alzheimer associations around the world awareness of dementia is improving. These organisations provide support to millions of people and continue to advocate to improve the quality of life for those living with dementia and their carers. We would like to thank everyone involved in this year’s campaign and look forward to your support for World Alzheimer’s Month 2020.
Campaign Materials

World Alzheimer’s Month posters, bulletins, social media banners and other infographics were produced for the campaign in 2019 and adapted by members worldwide into their own languages and with their own logos. In addition, for 2019, a campaign guide was produced, including tips on media and social media, how to organise events such as lighting monuments and working with the Government.

Campaign materials were made available in English, Spanish and French on the World Alzheimer’s Month, PAHO and ADI websites, including a second stream of materials inspired by the ADI-PAHO regional awareness campaign.

A Toolkit was developed for the campaign in 2019 which used by individuals and groups to plan activities, attract media and encourage the support of businesses.

Members were generally very positive about ADI’s campaign materials. From a survey of 66 members and developing members, 94% rated the materials provided by ADI 5 (very good) or 4 (good) on a scale of 1-5.

Alzheimer Yemen held several important events in September, including a ceremony for the Foundation’s opening and a presentation at Dhamar University, which targeted medical students and teaching teams on the topic of ‘Let’s Talk About Dementia.’ At the event, ‘KHADIGA’s Initiative,’ financial funds were raised for the elderly who cannot afford care services for Alzheimer’s.

In Cyprus, a musical fundraising event was hosted by Cyprus Alzheimer’s Association, which was attended by First Lady Mrs Andri Anastasiades and the Commissioner of Voluntarism, Mr Yiannakis Yiannaki. The Cyprus Civil Service Union choir, as well as the musicians Kaity Economides, Avra shiattis, Marios Ioannou and Marios Pavlou provided music for the event.

Taiwan saw a number of events take place for World Alzheimer’s Month, including a ‘Let’s Talk About Dementia’ Conference organised by Taiwan Alzheimer’s Disease Association at the College of Public Health. The conference explored ‘Human Rights of People with Dementia: Freedom from Financial Exploitation,’ which saw 238 participants and made frontpage headlines.

In Nigeria, Alzheimer’s Disease Association of Nigeria (ADAN) held an Alzheimer’s disease road walk, which consisted of elders from the community, school children and the staff of Nnamdi Azikiwe University Teaching Hospital. ADAN also hosted a health education lecture and football match contest, in addition to being featured on two radio talk shows.
To celebrate the beginning of World Alzheimer’s Month and the 35th anniversary of their establishment, Alzheimer Nederland welcomed Queen Maxima of the Netherlands to their celebrations at an Alzheimer café. Alzheimer Nederland also celebrated its 8th ‘2bike4alzheimer’, a 24-hour relay race that saw 36 teams cycle 400 kilometres to raise money for scientific research into dementia.

Alzheimer’s Association Myanmar hosted a public talk at the University of Nursing in Yangon, Ministry of Health and Spores, which saw close to 100 attendees.

In Costa Rica, Asociación Costarricense de Alzheimer y otras Demencias Asociadas held a symposium around the theme of ‘Let’s Talk About Dementia.’ The symposium was dedicated to the idea of dementia friendly cities, as well as how to better treat those with dementia.

In Mauritius, Alzheimer Association Mauritius in collaboration with Alzheimer and Dementia Organisation Kenya, held a two-day session training session for health professionals. The sessions centred around talking about dementia, ending stigma, caring for caregivers and diagnosis and treatment. Attendees responded positively to the sessions, agreeing there was an urgent need to make dementia a priority.
